ROY GARDNER GETS AID FROM DOCTOR IN WASHINGTON

Letter Received by Physician in Los Angeles Tells of Visit by Bandit

WOUNDS ARE DRESSED

Was Given Food and Lodging and Leaves Next Morning for Parts Unknown

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Roy Gardner, "bandit of bandits," has turned up again as dramatically as he disappeared under prison guards' fire, according to a copyrighted story which the Los Angeles Record will print today.

Gardener recently spent a night with a sympathetic doctor who dressed his wounds, packed a lunch for him and watched him disappear, to run for a hiding place somewhere near Newport, Washington, according to the story.

The Record claims possession of a letter written by a Newport doctor, Gardner's protector, to a physician now wintering in Los Angeles, who is also a friend of Gardner's.

The Newport physician is called "Dr. Leyden," although the Los Angeles paper admits this to be but a college nickname. An effort is being made to protect his identity for fear he may be prosecuted for aiding a criminal.

"That poor, unfortunate lad Gardner, whose case has interested us so long and so deeply aroused our sympathies, appeared at our back door, out of nowhere, late Saturday night," the letter is quoted. "He was suffering from lack of food. His resistance was gone from hunger and malnutrition. He had a couple of superficial gunshot wounds, healing unclean. I dressed the wounds. My wife fed him and put him up a box of lunch. We outfitted him with some clothes and he slept in a bunk in the garage until daylight and then disappeared."

The letter goes into intimate detail in describing Gardner's condition.

WITNESS FOR STATE IN ARBUCKLE CASE IS MISSING

Fee of Attorney for Comedian Said To Be Cause of His Withdrawal

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—Jack Lawrence, star witness for the state in the investigation of the prohibition angle surrounding the Roscoe Arbuckle manslaughter case, is missing. Rumors were circled that he had left for Australia, whence he came last April. Lawrence was said to have given evidence showing where Arbuckle secured the liquor which he served at his Labor Day party which preceded the death of Virginia Rappe.

Withdrawal of Frank Dominguez as counsel for Arbuckle on the eve of the comedian's arraignment of a manslaughter charged caused a stir here. Dominguez said other business demanded his attention, but it is understood that difference over fees caused his withdrawal. It was said that the attorney demanded $50,000, while Arbuckle thought $5000 more reasonable as a retainer. Milton Cohen and Charles Brennan are now handling Arbuckles case.

Arbuckle is expected here late today to plead personally to the manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe during a party in Arbuckles apartment. Judge Louderbach refused to allow Arbuckle to plead through his attorneys.

AID NOT GIVEN TO DROWNING YOUTH

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 6.—Captain John K. Bulger, supervising inspector of hulls and boilers, today planned an investigation of the death of Fulmer Hines of Los Angeles who was drowned more than a week ago when he fell overboard from a ferry boat enroute to Oakland. The cornoer's jury here late yesterday decided that Hines' death was accidental.

The federal investigation will cover charges that although a passenger reported to a deck hand that a man had fallen overboard from the ferry boat, the matter was not reported to the captain and no action had been taken.

AGED MAN SHOOTS BURGLAR IN STORE

MODESTO, Calif., Oct. 6. — Joe Cooper, one of three alleged bandits who failed last night in an attempt to hold up a grocery conducted by A. J. Mohr, has a chance to recover from a bullet wound he received, his doctor said today. Mohr, who is an aged man, whipped a revolver from his pocket and routed the three men who had ordered him to hold up his hands. He shot Cooper through the lung and the others ran. All were captured. They gave their names as Cooper, 22; his brother, William Cooper, 17, and Gordon Beebe, 17, all of Long Beach.

Small Satisfaction in Being Master in Home, Says Mr. James

Henry James in his comments on the editorial page this evening says that there is small satisfaction in being master in your own home if the mistress has the superior wallop. Then again, in his chatter about the ladies, he refers to the case of Mrs. Southard facing a murder charge after having, it is said, disposed of four husbands in much the same way. What surprises Mr. James is that No. 5 is waiting to marry her. He also comments on the case of Edward F. Searles whose body has been exhumed on suspicion that he was murdered. You will notice that Mr. James touches on subjects that are before the people at this time—timely and interesting.

Dr. Frank Crane discusses the speed which fishes make in the water. "The Listening Post" tonight is a flight into fancy—a choice bit from the pen of James W. Foley you will like.

Pass on to the editorials. There is one about a banker's statement that Congress is wilfully or ignorantly blind. Another discusses the spirit of the world. Diogenes flashes his lamp upon this wise saying: "The best prophet of the future is the past."

There is information and inspiration to be found upon the editorial page of this paper. Make a habit of reading it.

MONEY NOT IN BANK PLAINTIFF WINS

James F. McBryde, attorney for the plaintiff in a recent civil case in the matter of Fred Reed against Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gingery over the rental of an apartment, relates an unusual happening.

The case was relative to rent that the defendants alleged Mr. Reed would not accept from Mr. and Mrs. Gingry as it is said that he wanted the defendants to move. It is claimed by the defense that rent money was offered to Mr. Reed and that he would not accept it. It was further stated that the rent was taken into the apartment of Mr. Reed and placed on a table in the kitchen where it remained, and was possibly lying at the time of the trial.

The unusual incident of the case is the fact that Attorney McBryde for the plaintiff and Attorney Thomas for the defendant stipulated that Owen C. Emery should set as referee in the case in the place of a judge and that his rulings and judgment will be binding.

After hearing all the evidence the referee handed down the decision that as the rent money had not been placed in the bank, according to law, but had been left on a table, judgment should go to the plaintiff.

GLENDALE MEN YOU SHOULD KNOW

SPENCER ROBINSON

Specer Robinson, mayor of Glendale and one of its leading realtors made his first bow to the world at Rock Island, Ill., on March 11, 1868. After graduating from the grade schools he attended preparatory school at Media, Pa., and later entered LaFayette College in Easton, Pa.

While at LaFayette, Mr. Robinson took a prominent part in college and starred in football and baseball. He was halfback and played several times against Yale and Harvard. He also pitched for the college, opposing pitchers from Yale, Harvard, Amherst and Williams university.

For the past 15 years Mr. Robinson has been a resident of Glendale and one of its strongest boosters. Since 1911 he has been engaged in real estate on North Glendale avenue. Prior to entering the field, Mr. Robinson was a singer doing recital and solo work in the churches of Los Angees. He was soloist in Los Angeles for Robert ("Bob") Burdette at the Hazard pavilion for a long time. After leaving there Mr. Dobinson was soloist at the Methodist church at Sixth and Hill streets, filling his place under the ministry of Rev. Robert McIntyre, later made a bishop and under his successor, Rev. Charles W. Locke.

In 1919 Mr. Robinson was elected to the board of trustees here and served the city in that capacity until June, 1921, when the new city charter became effective and an election of councilmen and mayor was held. At this election the people of the city chose Mr. Robinson as the first mayor of Glendale and in that capacity he is serving at present.

Mr. Robinson is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, the Glendae lodge of Elks and the chamber of commerce.

CHAMBER ROOMS IN NEW QUARTERS AT $150 MONTH

Committee Will Recommend the Taking of a Five-Year Lease on Premises

The committee from the Glendale chamber of commerce having charge of securing the new home for the chamber on Brand boulevard, composed of Richardson D. White, Dan Campbell and J. H. Bentley, met with the Citizens' Building Company at the chamber headquarters last night. The purpose of the meeting was to decide on the rent to be paid by the chamber for the new quarters. It was decided to recommend to the board of directors of the chamber that the chamber lease the proposed quarters for a period of five years at a monthly rental of $150.

Under the proposed lease the chamber will have use of the auditorium twice a month, for one evening and one afternoon meeting; the small dining room at least once a week, the banquet room once a month, toilets, storage rooms, etc., and will have offices across the entire front of the building.

OXNARD LODGE TO VISIT GLENDALE

Forty-five members of the Glendale lodge of Odd Fellows went to San Fernando last night accompanied by two candidates, J. W. Jones and J. Lake, who were given the first degree initiation along with seven other candidates from outside districts.

After the initiation, supper was served and several members of visiting lodges and of the San Fernando lodge made interesting talks on the meaning and rites of the Odd Fellows lodge.

Plans are being made by officers of the Glendale lodge to have the Oxnard lodge degree team of 36 members come to Glendale and put on the third degree work for this lodge. The Oxnard degree team is said to be the champion Odd Fellows degree team of the world.

YANKEES TAKE GAME TODAY AS EASY AS YESTERDAY

Giants Play Good Game but Without Strength to Overcome Their Opponents

Anothr big crowd of baseball fans gathered at the office of the Glendale Daily Press this morning to "see" the second game of the world series between the Giants and the Yanks at the Polo Grounds, New York. Through the magnavox, loaned by the Kenny Music Shop, the fans heard distinctly reports of each play as it was announced from the leased wire in the office of the Glendale Daily Press. For those who colud not come to the office of the Press, E. B. Sutton, local Nash agent, oaned a Nash automobile and drived and an announced from the Press office told people along Brand boulevard progress of the game through a megaphone.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Pitched into a state of helplessness, the New York Giants were blanked for the second time and pushed farther away from the baseball crown when they went down before the Yanks here today, 3 to 0.

Close to 40,000 fans saw the brilliant game in which the battling Yanks repeated the great game that gave them first battle of the world series yesterday.

Waite Hoyt, the boy veteran from Brooklyn, took every ounce of drive out of the Giant bludgeons. He held the hard hitting National league champions to two hits, one a little drive that dropped between Babe Ruth and center field.

The Giants again played a heartless game and they showed symptoms of being whipped from the first inning. Their heads were down, and all the spirit that marked their drive for the pennant in the league race seemed to have evaporated.

Art Nehf, the star southpaw of the McGraw troupe, helped to pull the props out from under his own game and bring down upon the Giants' heads the second bucket of white wash in two days. In the fourth inning Ward singled and reached second when Nehf threw McNaly's grounder wild to second, trying for a force.

The Giant hurler seemed rattled by his slip and walked Schang. Hoyt pushed the first run over with an infield out.

Nehf took hold of himself then, and despite the frequent holes and his wildness got him in, he blanked the Yanks until the eighth inning when the whole club collapsed and spotted two more runs. Frank Fdisch dropped Peckinpagh's easy pop fly. Ruth forced Peckenpaugh and Meusel sent Ruth over with a single. Meusel then stole home. Smith made some remark to Meusel and afterwards was narrowly avoided by Umpire Moriarty.

The Giants had only three chances to score. In the third inning Rawlings led off with his scratch single; Smith then popped out, Nehf fanned and Burns forced Rawlings.

Nehf walked to start the sixth, but Hoyt got Burns, Bancroft and Frisch in a row on the easiest chances. Young falked as the started in the seventh inning, but Hoyt killed their chances. Babe Ruth failed again to do his big act, but he pulled a spectacular steal of second and third in succession.

BILLY TRUEBLOOD TO BE CALLED BY THE PROSECUTION

Father of Mrs. Southard Will Be Witness for State, It Is Now Believed

TWIN FALLS, Ida., Oct. 5.—"Billy" Trueblood, father of Mrs. Lyda Southard, will probably be called to testify against his own daughter. Trueblood will probably be summoned by the prosecution to testify as to what he knows of the manner in which Mrs. Southard made good her threat to "leave this town and go so far away that no one will ever find me."

After making an attempt to collect the $10,000 insurance on Meyer's life by making application for the money, Mrs. Southard suddenly disappeared from Twin Falls, the State charged. Her whereabouts were unknown until early in November, when she encountered some friends, a Mrs. James and daughter, in Los Angeles, the State alleges. The two women happened to register at the same hotel where Mrs. Southard was staying.

A small diamond disappeared from Mrs. James' room. The tissue paper in which it was wrapped was said to have been found in Mrs. Southard's room. Mrs. Southard was working at the time as a waitress in a cafeteria. Mrs. James wired Trueblood of the affair and asked his help in straightening it out.

Trueblood went to Los Angeles only to find, upon his arrival, that Mrs. Southard had disappeared, leaving the hotel without paying her bill and without taking her trunk. Trueblood settled the matter up and brought the trunk back to Twin Falls with him.

That Mrs. Southard, in order to add plausibility to her husband's fatal sickness, also administered a slight dose of fly-paper arsenic in coffee given Squires, also an employe of the Blue Lakes ranch and former roommate of Meyer, was the implication drawn by the defense from Squires' testimony.

Squires testified that he was also taken sick the same night Meyer was taken ill, and had the same symptoms, which physicians declare to be the symptoms of arsenic poisoning.

C. H. Thomas, insurance agent, and his son, Rex Thomas, who sold Meyer the $10,000 life insurance policy a few days after his marriage, testified that Meyer had originally considered taking out $2500 insurance, but after going back to consult with Mrs. Southard, decided to take out $10,000. They also testified that Mrs. Southard had attempted to collect the insurance.

"I do not believe Ed will ever recover. Somehow, I see death written in his face," Miss Martha Garrett, nurse who attended Edward F. Meyer, testified was the remark made to her by Mrs. Southard five days before Meyer's death.

BIBLE CONFERENCE IS ADDRESSED BY CHURCH HEADS

Dr. Cortland Meyers Holds Audience With Narrative of "The Last Words"

DR. PRATT ALSO HEARD

Large Attendance at All Meetings, Which Will Last Throughout Week

A full house at the Presbyterian church last night listened to Dr. Cortland Myers, late pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist church, Boston, give the first of a series of evening addresses to the Bible conference. In part he said:

"What is the greatest expression that ever fell from human lips, freighted with most meaning for every man? The last words of Jesus before he died: 'It is finished.' What did he mean? First, undoubtedly, that His earthly life was finished. In the beginning, He had made everything. All had come from His hand perfect. Even down to all microscopic organisms, there was perfection. Today, looking at a great, beautiful rose, the thought came, 'My Lord, the same hand that was nailed to the cross made that rose.' Everything man has made has imperfections. So many great men die leaving their work unfinished. All are doing something, but are not able to reach their ideal. But Jesus finished everything perfect. His life, ending on the cross, was perfect; not a thing could be added to it.

"His suffering was finished. Oh, what a world this is, and never so burdened with suffering as the last few years! Gather it all up, over all the world—some way, my Lord bore it all. He knew the physical suffering to the limit. But the heart suffering was far beyond. No one ever can understand what He felt when the world's guilt fallen upon him. He cried: 'My Lord, why has Thou forsaken me?' He was the most lonely person that ever lived in this world. He went through all he had to go through alone.

"And His purpose was finished. All through the old Bible there was one climax to be reached—Jesus was to

TYPHOID THEORY TO BE DEFENSE OF MRS. SOUTHARD

Attorneys Will Attempt to Show Typhoid Was Priary Cause of Death

TWIN FALLS, Ida., Oct. 6.—What the defense attorneys in the case of Mrs. Lyda Southard, alleged "bluebeardess" on trial on a charge of poisoning her fourth husband, Edward F. Meyer, intend to stand on Mrs. Southard's statement that she was a "typhoid carrier" was indicated today.

The questioning of physicians who attended Meyer by the defense attorneys was today directed toward proving that Meyer actually came to his death through typhoid fever and that previous to his fatal illness he actually had a case of "walking typhoid."

The defense will attempt to show that Meyer, on the day that his wife arrived at the Blue Lakes ranch with the poison fly-paper, ate some decomposed food and that this caused his illness, which illness so weakened his constitution that the typhoid germs already in his body got in their deadly work and caused his death.

CONGRESS MAY PUT ROADS IN MERGER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Congress will be asked to order the country's railroads to consolidate into a few systems if they will not voluntarily merge under the plan being worked out by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Senator Cummins, of Iowa, said today.

"If the roads were consolidated into a small number of systems it would make entirely possible, in my opinion, to make rates which would result in virtually equivalent returns to all railroads alike."

STAND MEEKLY FOR POSTAL SERVICE IN GLENDALE

Service is a commodity. A commodity is something you pay for and the other fellow sells. When you go into a postoffice, for instance (not the Glendale postoffice, but the Glendale branch of the Los Angeles postoffice), you pay your little 2 cents and in return get a little red stamp. The mere act of the good-looking young man at the window handing you out the stamp is called service. Isn't that true?

Now, there are two kinds of service. Specifically speaking, these are known as "service now" and "service after a while." Service now means that you are waited on exactly when you should be waited on—that when you go in to get said stamp you are waited on right now. Service after a while means that you go in to get a stamp, you trail the line back to yon corner of the building and meekly take your place at the tip end of the line. By and by the line moves up a peg and a shadow of a smile passes over your face—a ray of hope appears upon the horizon. A long, yes, a very long series of moves are made, consuming possibly half an hour, at the end of which, if you are lucky, you are within speaking distance of the man behind the counter. By this time you are nearly fagged, your hair is disarranged and your religion has been badly shattered. With great effort you manage to stammer: "Stamp, please."

At some postoffices the former kind of service is a habit, think of it, a habit! At the Glendale branch of the Los Angeles postoffice the "after a while" kind of service seems to be an indoor sport.

This assertion demands some sort of an explanation. Well, here's one. A day or so ago, a representative of The Glendale Daily Press happened to pass the local branch of the Los Angeles postoffice. At that time the lobby of the office resembled very much the lobby of a downtown theater just before the "second show." There was a line of people waiting for service, or, rather, securing this "after a while" service, extending from the window almost the entire length of the room. In this line were fourteen busy citizens of Glendale, some of them business men, who were compelled to take time from their business and stand in line in order to get a 2-cent stamp. There was only one window open, and one postal employe was frantically endeavoring to fill the requirements of those before him.

Ten minutes later the newspaper representative passed the branch office again, at which time there were eleven people in line. There were two windows open but not a salesman was in sight, and all the while the sufferers who were on the outside looking in were sighing: "How long, Uncle Sammie? How long?"

PROTEST BURBANK TRYING TO ANNEX

A strong protest against an attempt by Burbank to annex that territory in the foothills, west and north of this city and extending to Alameda street the city line of Burbank.

The proposition of annexing to Burbank has been before the people of that section three different times and every time the 54 voters of the district have turned down the proposition. Recently Glendale city was asked for and granted permission to circulate a petition calling for an election for Glendale annexation.

On last Tuesday Burbank started new proceedings for the annexation of this territory. Glendale is claiming a prior right to the territory and is preparing to go to court in case the Burbank proceedings for an election are effectual.

Children have a right to happiness, and a lot of them think they have a right to all the happiness in the family.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR
You Can Bring Back Color and Luster With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

GLENDALE WOMAN'S BACKBONE HOLDS SILVER TUBE

A miraculous operation in surgery was brought to light in Glendale by the story told by Mrs. M. T. W. Arfwedson, 434 West Harvard street. Mrs. Arfwedson received a third degree burn nearly four years ago from an X-ray treatment which she took to relieve headache. The X-ray light was in the hands of inexperienced physicians and it was thought that it was applied for too long. A great many surgeons in California and elsewhere were consulted but only one gave her any hope of recovery, he being Dr. Wayland Morrison of Los Angeles. Dr. Morrison became famous abroad during the war for his work at the front.

Mrs. Arfwedson was in the hospital for many months and during that time underwent twenty-two operations, seven of which were without anesthetic. The first operation removed two handsful of flesh from the spine, caused by the burn. The other operations were for the same purpose as well as to graft flesh taken from her limbs. Mrs. Arfwedson's vitality had become so low that it was impossible to administer anesthetics. In the case of a burn by X-ray, every particle of flesh struck by the light must be removed. At the second major operation a part of the vertebrae were removed. The spinal cord, however, was uninjured and the operation was successful and flesh and skin grafted over the parts. A silver tube replace the vertebrae removed. After these operations Mrs. Arfwedson was given no hope of ever walking again, but her determination was so strong that she gradually recovered the use of her limbs. The burn at the present time measures eight inches in length.

Mrs. Arfwedson was asked to appear before the surgeon's convention in Chicago and it is from that trip that she and her mother, Mrs. Wood, have just returned. At the convention she met many famous surgeons from all over the United States, many of whom stated that they had never heard of an operation of its kind before and that they would never have dared undertake it.

The trip proved to be very delightful and beneficial and did Mrs. Arfwedson no harm. While in the East they visited friends in Iowa and Utah, stopping on the return trip in San Francisco and the Big Trees.

LAUDS WOOD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Major-General Wood was declared to have done more to remedy America's unpreparedness prior to the nation's entrance into the World War than any other individual, in a letter written today by Secretary of War Weeks to the general, whose retirement from the active list of the army became effective, permitting him to assume the governorship of the Philippine Islands.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

WICKED PLANS GO WRONG.

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Chips Beaver and Tad Coon slept on and on at the foot of the willow tree by the Little Dark Pool. They'd been too tired to stay awake, and yet so scared at sleeping out in the open they were hanging on to each other until they looked like one patchwork rug of mixed-up fur. And the two foxes from the Big Marsh crept silently closer, tails arched, jaws open.

Young desperadoes, they were, who had come to the Deep Dark Woods, where nobody knew them, prepared to hold up whomever they met and take his very life away from him. "Now I take the light fellow (meaning Tad) and you take the dark one

Scratchy-Scramble, Up the Tree Went Old Tad Coon with the Other Fox Snapping After Him

(Chips, of course)," whispered the smaller fox, to be sure they wouldn't make any mistake and both take after the same one while the other got away from them. "But I can't tell which from who. What fur does the skinny tail belong on." (That was Chips' paddle).

"Wait till I look," said the bigger fox.

He poked his long nose through the leaves and cocked his head at the sleepers. The leaves hardly rustled—but the breeze, who can't help taking sides when it sees anything going on, carried a whiff of the queer fox scent to the Coon's snoozy nostrils. He wrinkled them—still in his dream. But the fox thought he was waking. "Pounce!" he gasped. And pounce they did! But——

They both pounced upon poor Tad Coon!

Just what they didn't mean to do. The bigger fox caught him because he was moving, and the smaller one tried because that's what they had agreed on. And they got in each other's way. So neither of them got a good hold.

Two snarls and a howl! That's what brought Chips Beaver from the bottom of the tangle, gasping with fright. Glaring eyes showed him where wicked jaws were feeling for Tad Coon's throat—as they might have been feeling for his own. A bristly roach on the hunter's savage neck showed him where to sink his long teeth in. Then, without even stopping to think, he dove, as is beaver custom. But he took the fox diving with him.

Oh he thought it was diving—into his brand new pond. But it wasn't; it was just tumbling into the Little Dark Pool. And he bumped so hard on the bottom he had to let go. Old fuzzy-brush went snapping and sprawling down the Wicked Little Brook! Chips came up for air—and he saw the mouth of his hole yawning beside him. He popped right in without stopping to wonder why it wasn't drowned, or why the waterfall was fairly whooping at his tail.

Scratchy-scramble, up the tree went old Tad Coon with the other fox snapping after him.

YOUNG ARTISTS TO CONTEST THIS YEAR

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president of the Glendale Music Club, spent yesterday in Los Angeles at an all-day session of the Federation of Music Clubs which voted to again put on a young artist contest similar to that of last year for musicians ranging in age from 18 to 30, and also a contest for juniors from 14 to 18.

Of the winners in the contest last year, two went to the National Federation contest and won second place. One was a Mr. Smith, a tenor, the other was a Miss Smith, a violinist. They were not related, and so far as Mrs. Jones knows, did not even know each other.

The Federation also voted to put on a membership drive between now and December as an inducement giving three months' membership without dues. Mrs. Jones is chairman of membership and expects to be very busy. Santa Ana and Glendale are in the lead with the largest number of musical organizations enrolled as members of the Federation and are tied for first place. She hopes to send her home city ahead of its competitor.

The Burbank Choral Club which assisted the Glendale Music Club in its spring concert, was voted into membership in the Federation yesterday.

GLENDALE PLAYERS BADLY CRIPPLED

A jinx has camped on the trail of the Glendale high school football team the past week. Two of the heaviest men on the team are out of the game with sprained ankles. Several days ago Fraley sprained his ankle and yesterday afternoon Captain Dutcher injured his ankle in practice. Fraley and Dutcher have been playing guard and tackle and the removal of these two who are the heaviest men on the team is considered worse than bad luck as Glendale opens the league season tomorrow afternoon in Alhambra.

With Dutcher and Fraley out of the game the Glendale line will average only about 160 pounds and it is said that Alhambra has an average of 175 pounds in the line.

The bantam weight team played a practice game with the first squad yesterday afternoon and demonstrated that weight is not the only thing that is required to play good football. Every man on the team weighs under 130 pounds and every man plays a fast, snappy game of football. There were times when the first team was forced to use every bit of their strategy and energy to break through the bantam line.

The first squad took the opportunity offered by the practice game to try-out some of their trick plays against the bantam squad that they will use in the game on Friday afternoon against Alhambra.

FLOWER DISPOSES OF GLENDALE LANDS

J. H. Flower, a former resident of Glendale, who has improved and marketed a good deal of property here, says that he has just bought a very attractive lot in the Palisades section of Santa Monica which he will improve for a home. He has been living in the beach city for some time, but does not stay away from Glendale for very long at a time. He states he has disposed of all his holdings in this city except 25 feet on San Fernando road just west of the old bank building, which he considers good property to hold, and 50 feet in his Maple street subdivision.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but becomes weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

CADMAN TRIO HERE ON FRIDAY BEFORE MUSIC CLUB

The program to be given by the Cadman Trio at the opening concert of the Glendale Music Club, Friday night, will naturally include a large variety of Mr. Cadman's compositions calculated to show his versatility, particularly in lyrics, which will be interpreted by Miss Margaret Messer. She is particularly fine in the Indian themes. She will sing the "Canoe Song," made famous by Princess Tsianina who has appeared in recitals with the composer, and this will be contrasted with the dramatic "Spring Song of the Robin Woman" from the Cadman opera, "Shanewis," in which Miss Messer has so distinguished herself.

CHARLES WAKEFIELD CADMAN

She will also sing a new Chinese cycle written by Cadman and based on real Chinese melodies. The poems of which these songs are the setting were written by Moon Kwan, a Chinese gentleman who has been connected with the Los Angeles studios. They are in manuscript as yet and Glendale will be specially privileged in this first hearing.

The composer will play some of the new music from the score written for the Ferdinand Earle production of "Omar Khayyam." This will be of greater interest to Glendalians because of the recent production of the Persian Garden in Verdugo Woodlands.

Mr. Cohen, who can charm a bird off a tree with his violin, will play some new Cadman numbers. He will also give some Kreisler favorites and will provide an obligato for one of Miss Messer's numbers.

Musicians of Los Angeles to whom the program has been outlined, expressed envy of the opportunities which Glendale is having through its Music Club, and if the high school auditorium is not packed with music lovers next Friday night, it will be a great surprise.

Club members will be admitted free of charge on payment of their semi-annual dues of $1.50. The price to non-club members will be $1 and the tickets may be secured at the Glendale Music Store, or from the treasurer and financial secretary of the club who will be at the door Friday night to receive club dues and to enroll new members.

CLUB SECTIONS PLAN MEETINGS

The parliamentary law section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club scheduled to meet the first and third Wednesday each month did not convene yesterday but will hold its first meting October 19 with its curator, Mrs. Harry Greenwalt, 408 Oak street. Last year the section worked on secondary motion. This year it will concentrate on organization and will give a demonstration before the full club December 20.

Tomorrow the Drama section of the club holds its first meeting with its curator, Mrs. R. E. Chase, 239 North Orange street. She will give a history and general talk on the drama. So popular is this section that a limit has been placed on its membership because it is to meet at the homes of members and therefore cannot be permitted to become too large. It already has quite a lengthy waiting list. Its program includes the study of "The Bluebird" (Maeterlinck), "Quality Street" (Barrie), "The Importance of Being Earnest" (Wilde), and the reading of the following one-act plays: "The Sins of David" (Stephen Phillips), "School for Scandal" (sheridan), "Mary Stuart" (John Drinkwater). One of Racine's plays, and some of the productions of Broadway, New York, will be reviewed.

Next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Literary section of which Mrs. F. L. Hollingsworth is curator, will hold its first fall meeting at her home, 462 Riverdale drive. "Americanization" will be its geenral theme for the coming year and at this first session Mrs. Alma Danford, city librarian, will tell of the demands upon the library for works on Americanization. Members will respond to roll call with vacation experiences.

Next Tuesday the Legislative section, of which Mrs. Annie Williams is curator, will meet at 1:30 at Masonic temple, preceding the club session, to study bills now before Congress which are of special interest to women.

Thursday next the new section of the club devoted to Arts and Crafts will have its organization meeting at the home of the curator, Mrs. R. W. Meeker, 1320 East Colorado street.

Next Friday afternoon the Music section will have its first meeting at the home of the curator, Mrs. C. L. Marlenee, 301 South Central avenue. Last year this section endeavored to compare the music of the different nations and show the characteristics of Russian music for example in contrast with that of the Italians. This year it will study the different forms of musical compositions, oratorios, operas, ballads, etc. An effort will be made to use the club talent as much as possible in its programs, and American composers will be in the foreground.

P.-T. ASSOCIATION SPECIAL MEETING

A special called meeting of the Federation of Parent-Teachers' Associations was held yesterday afternoon at the city library on Harvard street with Mrs. John Robert White presiding.

A communication from Richardson D. White enclosing a report of action taken by the advisory committee of nineteen and explaining the uses to which the board of education purposes to put the money realized from the proposed bond issue for $260,000 if it carries, was read by Mrs. White.

There was very little discussion as all present were familiar with the facts relative to school congestion in Glendale, and approved the recommendations of the advisory committee.

On motion of Mrs. C. H. Crawford, the Federation voted unanimously to support the bond issue for which citizens will be asked to vote next Tuesday, October 11, at three polling places, Cerritos avenue school, Intermediate, and Central avenue, the polls being open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

SENIOR BIBLE CLASS GIVES FAREWELL

The Ladies' Senior Bible class of the First Baptist church met last night at the home of Miss Elizabeth Bohannan of 316 North Maryland avenue, for a farewell meeting with Miss Mary Ranney, who has so kindly taught the class during the summer. About twenty ladies were present. After a social time an instructive entertainment was participated in by all and Miss Ranney was the winner.

Mrs. Ellen Burdick, in behalf of the class, presented Miss Ranney with a parting gift of money from the class. During the evening delicious refreshments of fruit punch and cake were served and all joined in a parting wish and hand-shake with Miss Ranney, who is leaving Monday for Poungoo, Burma, where she has been a missionary for several years, but has been home on a furlough for the summer.

KENSINGTON CLUB WITH MRS. KORTZ

The Kensington Club, which is a social auxiliary of the Women's Relief Corps, was delightfully entertained yesterday by Mrs. William H. Kortz, 341 Salem street. These meetings are quite informal social affairs with no program, but the hostess invited the ladies to participate in a little guessing contest in which Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshell proved the victor.

Twenty-five ladies were present, including the sister of the hostess who was a guest. Following a brief business session and a social hour, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

DORAN P.-T. A. IN FIRST MEETING

The Doran Street Parent-Teachers' Association held its first meeting yesterday afternoon at the school with Mrs. Peter Diederick presiding. Later in the session she tendered her resignation as president and Mrs. Louis Richardson resigned as secretary, because the children of both ladies have been transferred from Doran to another school. A committee was appointed to find candidates to fill the vacancies and report at the next meeting.

A fine talk on the coming school bond election for $260,000 was made by Superintendent Richardson D. White which was of special interest to new members of the association who wished to inform themselves in regard to the matter.

Mrs. John Robert White, president of the P.-T. A. Federation was a guest and talked informally about the work planned by that organization to promote school interests, and Mrs. A. A. Barton, chairman of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle talked on the relation of the circle to the P.-T. A.

At a short business session the club voted to increase its dues and use the proceeds to purchase material to be made into garments for the infants of needy parents. The club also voted to make over clothing for needy school girls. The afternoon for the most part was devoted to visiting and needlework.

DUCKS FLY HIGH IS HUNTERS' PLAINT

According to Gus Wangenheim, of the Neale & Gregg hardware store, who is recognized by the sportsmen of Glendale as an authority on hunting and fishing, the duck season in Southern California has so far proven a disappointment. The season has been very poor and will be, Mr. Wangenheim says, until it is colder in the north and a storm occurs to drive the ducks farther south.

There are plenty of ducks in the southland now, he says, but they are flying high and stay so far out on the lakes that it is impossible to shoot them. At Chatsworth and San Fernando ducks are plentiful but the only hunters that are having success are those using boats.

The recent rains have improved the dove and rabbit hunting and the deer hunters are having better luck since the showers. Until the recent rains the deer remained in the high places and were difficult to find. The sowers have driven them down.

COMMERCIAL HAS BIG ENROLLMENT

J. Rhea Baker, head of the commercial department of Glendale High, reports that the enrollment is about 25 percent larger than last year and that there is more interest and enthusiasm.

More students are taking bookkeeping and an additional class has been provided in shorthand. The intensive class in shorthand of two periods a day covering two years in one, is proving decidedly popular. This class is composed principally of post graduates. Not many high schools provide such a course.

The commercial law class in which 26 are enrolled, is now considering contracts. This class at the next semester will take up business organization and possibly salesmanship.

For the first time comptometers were put into the department this fall. Ten students have enrolled as operators and the two machines are in use every period of the day.

Truths in Epigram

The world has never had a good definition of the word liberty.—Abraham Lincoln.

Put your trust in God; but be sure to keep your powder dry.—Oliver Cromwell (1599-1658).

The best prophet of the future is the past.—Lord Byron 1788-1824).

The author who speaks about his own books is almost as bad as a mother who talks about her own children.—B. Disraeli (1804-81).

SPIRIT OF THE WORLD

"You bought against the calamity of war, but your work will not be completed until the burdens which result from the preparations for war are lifted from the shoulders of all peoples."

These words embodied one of the brightest flashes of sentiment in the address of General Pershing at Paris. They were spoken as, in the name of the people of the United States and their President, he laid a medal upon the tomb of an unknown poilu under the Arch of Triumph.

So speaks the professional soldier. Such men as General Pershing, ready to defend their country if need shall be, yet know the horrors of war, and hate the chance and the actuality of human slaughter. They are not the ones who seek to keep alive the spirit of hostility. Could the necessity for war be utterly abolished, and the billions now poured out to support war turned into useful channels, in the great increase of industry, in the betterment of education, men capable of leading armies and directing navies would be in high demand in the callings of peace.

In the utterance of General Pershing was the spirit that is more and more finding expression; the spirit that must become ruling and dominant if the organized world is to stand.

NOT TOO SERIOUSLY

The first impulse upon observing the activities of the ku klux is colored by resentment. The second thought suggests that the motley collection be regarded as a joke, played largely at the expense of the participants. Occasionally the besheeted grotesques will become annoying in some community, in which case a police force ought to be able to knock a sense of discretion into them.

It appears that the organizers of the solemn asses are guided by the thought that if there really is a sucker born every minute the sucker aggregation by this time must have reached a large aggregate. So the organizers are not actuated by principle. It is the hope of easy money that inspires them. Why not sell the suckers a sheet apiece, and some fanciful paraphernalia? Perhaps the course is justified in the consciences of the shrewd operators by the belief that if the victims were not buying these things they would be buying gold bricks.

An appeal to prejudice is made for the purpose of gaining recruits. The character of the appeal is demonstration enough that intelligence is not being solicited to join. Were an intelligent citizen asked to join a gang of nocturnal prowlers with the purpose of stirring up racial and religious hatreds, he would be likely to resent it forcefully.

Lately cotton has been in better demand. So far as this may be due to the number of picturesque nightshirts needed by the roving rabble, the ku klux have accomplished something. Also they have directed attention to the truth and wisdom of the exclamation "What fools these mortals be!"

Probably it is a mistake to take the ku klux seriously. Left alone they would fade out of the scene almost automatically.

A BANKER'S APPEAL

Elliott C. McDougall of Buffalo, a banker of high standing, says that congress is either willfully or ignorantly blind. This statement was incidental to an address he was making to the bankers of the country in convention.

The plea of Mr. Elliott is for reduction of expenses and consequent relief from taxation.

It is possible that the gentleman is unduly harsh in his characterization of congress. A body of men elected to serve the interests of the people hardly would be willfully blind, because neglect of the interests mentioned would be the undoing of the negligent.

If congress is ignorantly blind, it seems to have as company most of the citizens of the land. Of course there is the difference that congress may be assumed to be composed of men better informed than the average voter.

Even the astute banker does nothing more than point to the existence of evils of which all are aware. He does not name a remedy save in the most general terms. Anybody might have done as much.

Cut down expenses! How? Perhaps by reducing the army to an ineffective minimum? That has been done. By denying adequate relief to the ex-soldier? Already accomplished. By refusing to pay millions to the railroads that now owe the government millions? Might be worth trying. By declining to hire thousands to enforce the prohibition law? Out of the question. By destroying the naval reserve? Count that as done.

There are many civil positions under the government the duties of which are nothing. The most strenuous act of the incumbent is to sign a salary voucher. Why, for example, is a "naval officer," a port functionary so-called because he has to be called something? There is a clerical army at Washington that does less work than should be done by a body 50 per cent smaller. The director of the budget is finding leakages, and is more competent to stop them than the banker or editor, who are long distance observers.

But stop all the abuses and the fact will remain that the government is a big institution that requires large sums to run it. These sums must be raised by taxation. No tax is so eminently just that the privilege of paying it is welcomed with a smile.

When a gentleman of the financial world declares congress blind, perhaps he is right. His forceful expression does not give congress the essential vision. Perhaps it is the duty of him and his kind to take congress by the hand and lead it into the paths of safety. There is no utility in giving the sightless an impatient shove and telling them to "get a move on."

GOING FAR AFIELD

Miners in session at Indianapolis considered a number of matters pertaining to their welfare. One good thing they did was to turn down by overwhelming vote the "one big union" idea. This is the plan of the typical soapbox orator. It does not spring for any element of labor. It is advocated by the voice of non-labor.

Resolutions were adopted advocating nationalization of coal mines and railroads, repeal of all espionage laws, amnesty for all political prisoners, and self determination for Ireland.

Whatever may be the future of railroads and coal mines, it is probable that public sentiment would not sustain the nationalization of either. There is, on the other hand, a marked belief that both will have to be regulated. The fact that the government is pouring so much money into railroads assuredly gives the right to some influence in the use of the money. As to the mines, there is an habitual lawlessness the checking of which is a mere matter of protecting society. When federal troops marched into West Virginia lately, the riotous miners dispersed quietly, and announcements were made that "lawlessness is over." This was not exactly the case according to the state's attorney general, who points out that the operators maintain there a constant condition of lawlessness against which the action of the miners was a natural protest.

Self-determination of Ireland is not a matter properly to be passed upon by any labor body in the United States. It would be quite apart from the duty of an organized craft to deal with it, even if the question existed. The request for self-determination for Ireland comes from a faction, and not from Ireland as a whole, or a majority.

However, all this is incidental. The miners have rights, or should have rights, and they never will get them unless they stick up for them. It is interesting to observe that they find time to consider so many affairs not directly touching their own calling.

How Fast Can a Fish Swim?

By Dr. Frank Crane.

How fast can a fish swim?

To the curious minded, and this includes us all, this is an interesting question.

You can time a bird's flight with a stop watch, for you are standing still and can watch its passage from point to point, but to gauge a fish's progress is more difficult, and a good deal of conjecture, not to say "nature faking," has been written on the matter.

One of the best authorities on the subject is Christopher Beck, from whose observations in the London Daily Mail I make the following quotations.

Other things being equal, he says, the larger a fish the more rapidly it can swim. A 10-lb. salmon can give a very good imitation of a tornado. Even when hooked and dragging a line against a heavily braked reel, its speed is simply terrifying.

A tarpon, with its much greater size, its long, slender body, and tremendous muscular power, can certainly outstrip a salmon. I have heard men who have caught tarpon assert that, in their opinion, a tarpon can travel at eighty miles an hour.

Traveling from Charlestown to Jacksonville I have watched a shoal of porpoises swimming in wedge formation in front of the steamer, and seen them—evidently in response to some given signal—divide into two separate squadrons, each of which wheeled and dashed back around the stern of the ship, to return almost instantly and take up their former position.

The ship at the time was moving at nearly 15 knots, and after seeing this maneuver repeated several times other spectators agreed with me that the porpoises could swim just about three times the pace at which the vessel was traveling, which would work out at something like fifty miles an hour.

A shark, I think, is nearly as speedy as a porpoise, but it is a bit slow in starting. There is, I fancy, only one fish that could give points and a beating to the tarpon. This is the swordfish, a creature that runs to a thousand pounds or more in weight, and which for sheer strength and ferocity has possibly no match in all the seas.

As for the whale, which is, of course, a mammal and not a fish, its speed cannot be compared with that of some of the creatures already mentioned, yet even so, any whale could beat the fastest ocean greyhound in a speed contest.

As to trout he says that "in the clear water of a moorland trout stream you can sometimes get a very good view of trout, and, peering over the edge of a high bank into a pool, I have dropped a small pebble and watched the trout flash away. After trying this experiment a good many times I have come to the conclusion that a small trout can move at pretty nearly thirty miles an hour.

"But I do not think that a trout is as fast as a mackerel. A mackerel, weight for weight, is certainly a stronger fish than a trout, and in a race between the two I should say that the mackerel would be the winner."

IN THE LISTENING POST

A man walked down the street.

With his head up, his shoulders back his eye clear and his heart glad.

Something had come to pass to put him in a delightful frame of mind.

Somebody may have left him ten thousand dollars.

Which made him glad.

Although it involved the ending of life for somebody.

But he did not think of that so much.

* * *

We think mostly of ourselves.

That is most of us do.

And very naturally, too.

Because we are the centers of our own worlds.

We are the axes about which everything revolves.

For us.

It is one of those things that we do not rail against.

We merely accept it as a trait of human nature.

And make the best of it.

The useless teachers are those who would change human nature.

Which cannot be done.

More than a teacher can teach you to breathe with your ears.

Nature says you shall breathe with your lungs.

And she provides muscles that act without your knowledge or direction.

Otherwise, when you slept you would smother.

Or suffocate.

Because you would not be there to direct your breathing.

* * *

The wise teacher recognizes facts in human nature and seeks, not to change, but to govern.

If there is greed in human nature, the wise teacher seeks to temper it.

If there is hatred, to control it.

If there is passion, to check it.

* * *

But to get back to the man who was happy:

Possibly his wife had told him he was a great man.

Or some other improbable thing may have happened.

At any rate, he was well satisfied with himself.

And with the world.

He saw the sun at the dawn.

Because he got up early.

And the man who gets up early adds length and beauty to his days.

By getting up an hour earlier every morning you add seven hours to the week of daytime.

That is three hundred and sixty-four hours a year.

That is fifteen days a year added to daylight and beauty.

In ten years one hundred and fifty days.

In forty years of working life, an hour gained every morning equals six hundred days gained.

* * *

Think what you can do in that many days!

What you can enjoy!

How much beauty you can see.

Nearly two years of usefulness and beauty added to your life.

And all you have to do is to get up at six o'clock in the morning instead of seven.

* * *

But again to get back to the man:

He exclaimed: "How wonderful the dawn is this morning. It is at its best!"

And then he heard a bird sing, and cried:

"How beautiful that song is! The bird is singing at its best this morning!"

And he saw a flower nodding at him from a hedge and declared:

"How beautiful that flower is this morning. The flowers are at their best!"

* * *

And so he went on rhapsodizing about the things he heard and saw.

"The air is wonderful this morning! So cool and fresh and fragrant! It is at its best!"

And after while he met a friend who greeted him in a friendly way and said:

"How well you look this morning. And how friendly you are! I think you are at your best!"

* * *

And then he told the man of the bird and the dawn and the flower and the air.

And the man who was a bit of a philosopher smiled.

And said:

"Possibly, after all, it is YOU who are at your best!"

SONGS OF THE POETS

A Turkish Legend.—By Thomas Bailey Aldrich (1837-1907).

A certain Pasha, dead five thousand years,
Once from his harem fled in sudden tears,

And had this sentence on the city's gate
Deeply engraven: "Only God is great."

So these four words above the city's noise
Hung like the accents of any angel's voice,

And evermore, from the high barbican,
Saluted each returning caravan.

Lost is that city's glory. Every gust
Lifts, with dead leaves, the unknown Pasha's dust,

And all is ruin—save one wrinkled gate
Whereon is written: "Only God is great."

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

ANOTHER FREDERICK FUNSTON

[Milwaukee Sentinel]

Many hearts will be touched by announcement from Washington that President Harding has designated Frederick Funston of San Francisco to take the West Point examination on March 7, 1922. Young Funston is the son of a fighting father, the brilliant General Frederick Funston, who was stricken down at a time when he seemed destined to render his greatest service to his country. He died suddenly on February 19, 1917, as America was drawing its sword to stop the ugly affair "over there."

General Funston has been described as one of the most typical American soldiers we have had in recent years; few men in our military forces have made good in so striking a wad. His adventures as a newspaper reporter led him into the actual military service in Cuba, and his exceptional talent, both as an inspired leader and an able commander, brought him to the front in almost sensational fashion. Had he been spared to his country a little longer there is no doubt his name would have been printed large among the heroes of the world war.

Following in the footsteps of his distinguished father young Funston should rise to the top if the inheritance of military talent counts for anything, and there are examples in our history that such genius runs in families. General Funston left behind a noble record. This younger Frederick Funston should find inspiration in the deeds of his father.

Comment on the News

By HENRY JAMES

The body of the late Edward F. Searles has been exhumed. The reason for this is suspicion that he was poisoned. Searles never had a very happy time after he wedded the Hopkins millions, and now it seems that even the grave does not afford complete rest. As an illustration of the possibility that the path to riches is not rose-strewn, and that nothing worth while is at the end of it, Searles is unequalled. While engaged to a young woman, and himself young, he went to San Francisco to decorate the house of Mrs. Mark Hopkins, whose husband had piled up an immense fortune along with Huntington, Crocker and Stanford. Mrs. Hopkins was old and childless, susceptible to flattery and the decorator was adept in supplying the flattery. He won her hand and all that was in it, and shortly after the hand relinquished wholly its feeble grasp. Searles never seemed to know what to do with his easy money. He went east and lived as a recluse. When he died his estate went to a professional money-grubber who did not need it. The recluse was buried, and by this time would have been forgotten if they hadn't dug him up to hunt for poison.

It is interesting to observe that the supreme court of Michigan says a man is master in his own home. However, there is small satisfaction in being master if the mistress has the superior wallop. The case in question concerned the conduct of a wife who had set up a still in the family cellar, and taken to hawking moonshine. The husband said he couldn't prevent. Now he must change his mind or be in contempt of court.

* * *

According to judicial decree, makers of moonshine whisky must pay income tax. This will put them in a difficult position. If they swear the income is derived from the sale of whisky their statements might be utilized as confessions, and a fine follow the tax. However, other courts have held that whisky is not property. The value of whatever lacks the quality of being property is reckoned at exactly nothing. So an income from the sale of that which is not property is the acceptance of value for which no return is given. Could the assessor share in such ill-got gain and keep his conscience clear?

One of the members of a convention of bankers now in session has a formula for stabilizing world trade. Doubtless it is quite beyond the lay power of analysis, requiring the mind trained in finance to comprehend it. But everybody would be glad to see it tried.

One of the advocates of Pershing square for the Los Angeles public library says that unless it is put there "we won't get it at all." There is no reason why this should be true, and there is absolutely no reason why the library should be erected in the square which its presence would spoil for park purposes. There are plenty of downtown sites for a library, but no other site for a park.

The healer calling himself Brother Isaiah has been held on a charge of manslaughter. Had the mobs he collected about him been dispersed gently when they first began to collect in their futile quest for healing, he would have escaped such experience. The evidence tended to show that in the attempt to heal an aged invalid, he had broken several of her bones, a course not approved by the statutes whatever the followers of the man may think about it.

Probably the case of Mrs. Southard will not fill much space, since the place of her trial is so remote. She faces a charge of murder in a little town in Idaho. The supposed victim was her fourth husband, the charge being that she poisoned him, and the implication being that she disposed of the three ahead of him on her marital list. Other relatives also passed away in a mysterious fashion that it is suspected Mrs. Southard might explain. But there is at least one believer in the woman. He is husband No. 5, a brave man even if he is foolish.

New York has a landlady who is erecting apartments in which there will be shelter for children, cats and dogs. This bespeaks her broad sympathies and her kind heart, but for all that she is likely to have a sort of circus on her hands.

A recent scientific treatise on pheasants, in four volumes, sells at the modest price of $250.

In 1822 a vessel was wrecked in the Gulf of Guinea, its cargo consisting of barrels of palm-oil. A year later one of these barrels was washed up at Hammerfest, Norway, having drifted more than 11,000 miles.

GOOD-SIZED SALES IN LOCAL REALTY OFFICE

One of the newest real estate offices in Glendale is that of Peter Hanson, 124 West Broadway. While this office is one of the newest in the city it has put over several big deals that give the sales force reason to feel elated.

Mr. Hanson, associated with William McMillan and E. L. Schuyler opened the real estate agency on West Broadway three weeks ago and have transacted business aggregating $41,000. The largest sale handled by the firm is the sale to G. B. Low of the J. I. Wernette home on the corner of Louise street and Mountain street for $21,000. Mr. Low purchased this place as a home and with his family has already taken possession. Other smaller deals on Brand boulevard and other sections of the city mark three weeks of good business for the new firm.

H. W. Hall of 126 South Maryland avenue is very seriously ill at his home.

come to fulfill everything. Take the burnt offering, which was to be completely consumed, nothing left out—He was that; all that He was went in. And the sin offering—He was to make our peace. Every offering looked forward to the day of Calvary. These modern vagaries and cults, the one thing they are all most guilty of is, cutting down the Divinity of the Son of God.

"And He meant that my salvation was finished. Jesus died and paid it all. 'Behold the Lamb of God that hath taken away the sin of the world.' The atonement is beyond my explanation.

"Listen! If you are not personally related to this finished work of Jesus, forthwith find your way to the cross—and then go out to holy service."

DR. PRATT SPEAKS

The first address of the Bible conference was given in the afternoon by Dr. J. R. Fratt of Pasadena. He read from the 15th chapter of Acts, beginning at the 17th verse: "That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called—known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world."

"A simple program of God's own. It is very essential that we discover God's plan and work in harmony with Him. 'Known to God are all His works;" so it is not astounding that He has a plan and purpose for the universe. At the present time He is working out all things according to His purpose. Even the devil himself will find he has been a most effective agent. There is Scripture for this. We ought to be very diligent and prayerful to discover God's plans, for our life's success will depend absolutely upon it. Get back to the Book. It is just as well adapted to this century as to the first.

"There are two suggestions. First, that God has a definite program. Second, that we adhere to it. We have the specifications in our hands and some day will have to give an account of the building. We are here to spread the Gospel, not to establish a kingdom—God will do that Himself.

"There is a vital difference between an 'age' and a 'dispensation.' An age is a period of time. A dispensation is a test of a people. There is an age between Christ's first coming and His second. About three-fourths of the prophecies for this age are yet to be fulfilled. In this age since Christ came, are three distinct dispensations. It began with that of Pentecost, which passed centuries ago. The second is that of the Church, the mystery unfolded by a new revelation, the Gospel of grace. This revelation was given to Paul. The third dispensation will be that of the Tribulation, which will close this age.

"We should be giving an ear for sounds, instead of looking for signs. We walk by faith and not by sight. The great masses of God's people today are in their infancy spiritually, still feeding upon milk. Time is short, eternity is long; we cannot afford to give our time to things perishable. The saints are to do the ministering in these earnest days, and the pastors are to see that they do it. There is not a denomination in the world today that could not carry the Gospel to the whole world if it would but do it. A tremendous responsibility rests upon the church of today."

The conference is being very largely attended and will continue through to and include Sunday.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

THE BITING OF THE BITER

Alcohol Mike went a-ridin' back to th' Bar Circle A,
Pickled th' previous evenin' but he didn't spend long in th' hay
Fer he had t' be saddled an' hittin' the' trail by th' breakin' of day.

Mike was th' name he was christened, but fer reasons appealin' an' good
Th' boys added "Alcohol" to it, an' it fitted him well so it stood.
An' Mike himself added a little, when, where and however he could.
An' Follis th' foreman would smell him a-comin' from town an' he'd say
That if he could take Mike an' distill him, he'd start a saloon right away,
An' have enough wet-goods to last him fer many an' many a day.

Alcohol Miwe went a-ridin,' but 'long 'bout a mile on his course
He went sound asleep in th' saddle an' tumbled down off 'n his horse,
Right into a big bed o' cactus an' snored there with fervor an' force.

A feller with sense, near a cactus, would take a few minutes t' scout
Fer rattlers, but Mike didn't worry fer fear any snakes were about
Because he had had 'em so often he sort o' felt lonesome without.

So a bed-feller rattler was nothin' t' Mike an th' men of his ilk,
An' Mike snuggled up to th' cactus like a kid to a bottle of milk,
Fer a few drinks of Happy Home whiskey makes a cactus bed softer 'n silk.

An' somebody heard him a-snorin' a cuple of miles up th' trail,
An' thought it was cattle stampedin', but saw Mike's horse rollin' his tail,
An' found Mike asleep in th' cactus, contented as if he's in jail.

Found Mike sound asleep with a piller of cactus snugged under his head;
Snake-bitten, th' feller, he told us—but th' snake was a-layin' there dead
With th' signs of delirium tremens—at least, so th' feller, he said!

TUJUNGA IS AFTER MORE PHONE SERVICE

TUJUNGA, Oct. 6.—A determined effort on the part of the residents of Tujunga to secure all-night telephone service for the valley is being made. An all-night telephone service is a great need in this section and residents have decided to delay action no longer. They will exert every possible means at their disposal to secure the service.

A committee from the clamber of commerce and from the business men's association of Tujunga has been appointed to work for the installation of the all-night phone service and it is hoped that this committee will find some way to keep an operator on duty at the exchange all night.

J. F. Simonds and wife, who have lived in Tujunga for the past six months, have moved to Long Beach.

J. Underhill is erecting a building on Sunset boulevard which when completed will be occupied by J. C. Greer as a business house.

B. Zachan, a former resident of Tujunga, has recently returned from a prolonged stay in Hamburg, Germany, and says that merchandise is cheaper in Hamburg than in the United States.

"THE OLD NEST" FULL OF HUMAN APPEAL

The story and the scenario were written by Rupert Hughes, the direction was handled by Reginald Barker and the cast includes the following players: Mary Alden, Cullen Landis, Louise Lovely, Helene Chadwick, the famous "Edgar" children, Johnny Jones, Buddy Messenger and Lucille Ricksen; Maurice B. ("Lefty") Flynn, Molly Malone, Richard Tucker, Nick Cogley, Dwight Crittenden and several others.

Buster Keaton's latest comedy scream, "The Playhouse" (life behind the footlights), is a special added attraction to the program.

So says Mervyn Mills, secretary of the company. He says the company is planning some changes in its car schedule which will make it conform more closely to the running time of Pacific Electric cars, with which the Glendale-Montrose line connects.

P. G.'s to Organize—There are rumors that the P. G.'s of the high school will form an organization with by-laws, officers and have regular sessions. A meeting to consider the matter was called for some day this week. Most of the P. G.'s are in the commercial department fitting for business life.
